Du Pont plans 4th well

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

As a measure to ensure continuity of operations at the Du Pont plant in DeLisle, plant officials plan to construct an additional disposal well.

"The additional well," Du Pont senior supervisor of safety, health and environment Garry Ruff reported, "will provide a spare well to be used during periods of routine testing and maintenance of existing wells, and in the event of an unscheduled shutdown."

Du Pont uses underground injection to dispose of an acidic iron chloride solution generated in the production of titanium dioxide, its only product.

Ruff said, the plant disposes of 250 gallons per minute, 120 million gallons per year of the acidic solution 10,000 feet below ground level into a geologic layer of sandstone. Here the acidic solution disperneutralized into the existing fluids.

Du Pont has been using deep well injection since late 1979 when the first two wells were constructed. The third existing well at the plant was constructed in the early 1980's.

The wells, reported by the state Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) to each be approximately 10,000 feet deep, are constructed of two layers of cement and steel casing to ensure leakage prevention. Into these surrounding layers an injection casing is placed and the remaining space is filled with brine, a strong saline solution.

The brine acts as a monitor and a leakage preventative as it is pressurized. Should a break in the injection casing occur, the brine is forced into the disposal tubing, preventing any acidic

Job hunting

MES offers tips for finding employment

BY TRACI BONNEY

Area schools are closing for the summer, and students now face the question of what to do for the next three months.

Some will hang out at the beach or other favorite spots, while others will look for part-time jobs to earn some extra spending money or help pay for college.

For those students — and other people — who are planning to job-hunt, Ann Ladner with the Mississippi Employment Service offers a few tips:

—Have a resume ready to give or send a prospective employer. Some companies have job applications, but others don't. In addition, a resume will let you give the employer information you may not be able to put on an application.

—Take your own pen with you, and have your references (their names, occupations, addresses and phone numbers) written down so you can easily fill in the reference section of your application.

—When filling out the application, write clearly and spell correctly. Sloppy writing and bad spelling and grammar do not impress prospective employers.

—Find out about the company before you fill out an application or arrange an interview. Doing your homework about the company shows you are interested in working there, and helps you to know which of your job skills are needed in the company. You can usually find information about local companies through the library, Chamber of Commerce or the Employment Service.

—If inquiring about openings by telephone, don't call and ask "Are you hiring?" Most companies will say they aren't.

However, an employer will be more likely to respond positively if you say something like, "I'm interested in working for you. When would be the best time to come by and fill out an application?" This shows the employer you want to work for him or her, and gives the employer an opportunity to let you know whether or not he or she is hiring.

The employer may tell you to fill out an application even if he or she isn't hiring. If you do submit an application when an employer isn't hiring, the employer will keep it on file.

If an employer wants to interview you, make sure you don't set the interview on a day

Noise ordinance outlined

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Waveland Board of Aldermen left Tuesday's meeting with the draft of a proposed noise ordinance in hand.

City attorney Lucien Gex presented copies of a preliminary draft which included decibel readings for loudness determinations.

With a decibel meter in hand, Gex said the ordinance needed to set sound intensity limits for enforcement by the local police.

When a policeman is called to someone's house at 11 o'clock at night for a noise complaint, he explained, there must be some way for the officer to determine whether the sound is considered intrusive upon another's rights.

A resident, claiming to live near Elwood Bourgeois Park, spoke of excessive noise created by the calling of baseball games over the sound system at the park.

"Not only is there the constant calling of games, night after night, but one Saturday," the woman stated, "someone screamed into the public address system for Chris to get out of bed and down to ball field immediately."

"Next thing I knew a little boy came peddling down the street on his bicycle heading toward the park. I assume it was Chris."

Gex said in the draft he borrowed decibel limits set by the cities of Tupelo and New Orleans for automobile, and machinery emissions.

He asked for board members to review the ordinance draft and return with input as to maximum levels to be allowed for specific activities.

Ward 3 Alderman Curtis P. "Phil" Colson said he could supply Gex with definitive information on sound decibel levels.

Another point of discussion came when Mayor Stella Frlot reported the need for the city to decide whether to join in a tri-county waste disposal plan or create their own plan by July 9.

The plan must address how

1355th to be given Unit Citation Award

BY TRACI BONNEY

The National Guard 1355th Supply and Support Company is being recognized this weekend for its outstanding service during the Persian Gulf war.

Shawn Bullard, a spokesman for Rep. Gene Taylor, said Taylor and Major Gen. Jerry Harrison will be at the Ocean Springs Armory at 726 Pine Drive

Saturday at noon to present the company a Unit Citation Award from the U.S. Army.

Bullard said the award was being given for the company's "exceptionally meritorious service while deployed to southwest Asia in support of United States-led multi-national forces against a hostile and tenacious

Hancock teacher turns in the chalk after 45 years

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Afretta Martin Ladner has given up one career to begin another, so she says.

The career to which she has bid adieu has sustained her for 45 years. The future she now approaches holds the promise of quality time with the man to whom she chose to share her life, also 45 years ago.

"My husband has been supportive all these years," Ladner stated. "Ever since I graduated from college, he has hauled me back and forth to PTO meetings. I feel it is time for me to be there for him."

According to Ladner her husband suffered a stroke not long ago, causing her to re-evaluate her priorities.

"My decision to retire has not been an easy one for me," she elaborated. "I lost my son 12 years ago, and next to giving my son back to God, this is the second hardest decision I have ever had to make."

Ladner was seated upon a

Bay Area's tri-county disposal plan

Bay Area's tri-county disposal plan is a joint effort by the three counties to manage solid waste. The plan includes a regional landfill and a transfer station. The landfill will be located in the central part of the region, and the transfer station will be located in the northern part of the region. The plan also includes a program to reduce solid waste and a program to recycle materials. The plan is expected to be completed by the year 2000.

Man survives ultralight plane crash

Pearlington resident Steve Anerassy, 56, remains in fair condition at North Shore Regional Medical Center in Slidell after crashing his ultralight airplane into the Pearl River marshes Sunday afternoon.

Anerassy suffered multiple injuries after crashing near Little Lake, a few miles north of Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Coast Guard officials reported, a fisherman saw the plane going down between 4 and 4:30 p.m. in the vicinity of the Pearl River and East Pearl River, and radioed the Coast Guard cutter Point Estero.

The cutter launched a small boat and dispatched a helicopter and auxiliary airplane. Coast Guardsmen located the plane and freed Anerassy, who was conscious, within about 22 minutes from the time of the call.

The airplane was described as a hang glider with a motor. One pilot sits in an open framework underneath a fabric wing, powered by a single, small engine.

counties and cities intend to handle waste disposal for the next 20 years. Included must be an explanation on how waste disposal can be reduced by 25 percent within the next three years.

Prilot said the state has mandated this information be given by July 9, and the federal government has mandated each state report the same by January of 1992.

She recommended the board approve a letter of intent to join in the tri-county plan, presently being prepared by Compton Engineering of Pascagoula.

She emphasized, should Waveland join with the county they would share in disposal only. Collection responsibility would still remain in the separate hands of each city and county.

Ward 1 Alderman Barbara Rappold motioned for the board to review the information upon availability and a telephone poll vote be taken at a later date if deemed necessary.

The board approved a survey by city engineer Duke Levy on property along Waveland Avenue previously donated by a Dr. Eagan for city use.

In other business the board approved:

—authorization for the mayor to sign partial payment estimate #8 to GM&R Construction Co. for $51,737 on the FmHA water and sewer improvement project;

—authorization to pay Ray Eaton and Associates $3,500 for inspection, $1,500 for professional and $840 for additional change orders, all partial payments, on services regarding the FmHA water and sewer improvement project;

—advertisement for an eighth of a page at $35 in the 1992 Coca-Cola All-Star Soccer Game's program;

—authorization for the mayor to enter into a new contract with Cellular South which includes reduction in price per minute on peak time calls from present rates charged;

—ratification on two poll votes, one permitting utilities superintendent Mike Barnes to attend a continuing education course on financial accounting for two days in Gulfport, and the other, authorizing the mayor to attend an MMA advisory meeting in Jackson;

—the resignation acceptance of Phil Lagasse from the Hancock County Human Resources Board;

—authorization for city fire chief, David Garcia and utilities superintendent to travel to state surplus store for purchases.

"These citizen-soldiers exemplify what our forefathers had in mind more than 200 years ago."

Louisiana man drowns

BY TRACI BONNEY

A Marrero man drowned Wednesday afternoon after in a bayou behind a Shoreline Park home on North Carolina Street, according to Sheriff Ronnie Peterson.

Peterson said Robert Scott Leo, 18, was visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Mildred Donohue, at her summer camp. "Apparently, he couldn't swim, but was floating on an inner tube when he lost control and fell into the water. The neighbors heard some hollering and tried to get the boy out."

"A 911 call was placed to the Sheriff's Office. After Deputy Nathan 'Corky' Hoda and Mobile Medic personnel arrived, the victim was retrieved after being in the water eight minutes."

"He was given CPR on scene and taken to Hancock Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead."

Peterson said Investigator Matt Karl is in charge of the case.

Teacher

children's gym set in McLeod Park Monday as swarms of fellow employees and family joined her for a crawfish boil given by the school district in which she served all her life.

She related how as the fourth child of seven born to the late C.H. and Lydia Ann (Martin) Ladner, she was reared in the Standard Community.

She attended and was graduated from Dedeaux High School as valedictorian in 1944. From there she earned a bachelor of science in education from the University of Southern Mississippi after completing Pearl River Junior College.

Returning home, she was employed by the Hancock County School District and began her teaching career at her alma mater in the elementary levels of first through sixth grades.

When Dedeaux High School was replaced with the more modern facilities of Hancock North Central, Ladner continued her profession, remaining in elementary instruction.

"The last few years, I have been teaching the fourth grade," she stated. "But overall I prefer the third grade. It is a transitional age; the children are just wonderful as they begin to expand their skills."

Ladner, a robust woman with a splendid sense of humor, said she was unable at that time to even think about not seeing the children anymore.

At one time, she reported, she was suffering from an asthma attack and had to be hospitalized. "I was beside myself worrying how the children were to manage without me. I was so upset over being ill.

"Finally after six or seven days, I had to admit to myself that someone else could care for them and they would be all right."

According to district superintendent Myrna Bourgeois, Ladner has managed to have perfect attendance 40 of the years she has served the district.

"Her retirement is a loss to the district," Bourgeois said, "but, we all understand her choice."

Ladner said earlier that day at Hancock North Central, "The children presented me with a bouquet of roses, a plaque, and a rocking chair."

She added with a trembling voice, "I am so filled up. I feel like I am at the breaking point, and I will start crying and not stop."

Ladner commented, along with her father, her fourth grade teacher, Miss Ida Mae Ladner played the most important role in her professional choice. "Miss Ladner impressed me with the love, respect and understanding she gave to her students."

"It has been a good choice. Teaching has always provided me with a good livelihood, far above the comfort level."

"I have always felt a commitment to the children, and the profession to which I have always tried to remain faithful."

"I am thankful for so many happy years... I have taught the children of the children of the children I have taught, and my reward comes when I see the smiles on their faces as they grow towards a better life."

"My reward has been in having some small hand in guiding their pursuit of knowledge and development of skills. Teaching has a way of being a reward in itself."

"It has been a pleasure to work for and with the faculty, parents and students of Hancock County during my tenure."

Ladner said, in the past 45 years she has seen an increase in equipment. "I remember when everything was hand written on the chalk board. Today, aside from equipment, there are core requirements which help in the identification of individual needs."

"I hope the work that has begun, at not letting any child slip through the cracks, continues. Every child has potential. It is important that education continues to find and strengthen the good in each individual."

Ladner said, she had no definite plans for the future other than to do what comes naturally.

"I am feeling such mixed emotions today," she added. "It seems like I am leaving part of my family behind. I shall miss teaching and all the people I have come to love."

The annual fish fry will be Friday night and will feature fried fish, potato salad and garlic bread for a donation of $5 each.

The most popular chefs for the fish fry are getting their grease hot, and by the way, takeouts will be available.

On Saturday and Sunday food booths will feature boiled crabs, shrimp and crawfish, etouffe, gumbo, special hamburgers, hot dogs, po-boys, shrimp bordelaise, shrimp-on-a-stick and many other delights.

Chefs from some of our most popular establishments, such as Chappy's Restaurant, The Chimneys, Caldwell's Deli, Jack's Restaurant, Lil' Ray's, and Cafe Reef will be featuring some of their specialties.

It will be a fun-filled weekend with special entertainment for the family.

There will also be carnival rides, a t-ball tournament, a wide variety of craft booths, sno-balls, all types of desserts and much more.

Everyone is invited to St. Clare's annual fund-raiser. See you at the Fair and Seafood Festival.

In case some of you may not realize it, there are still some in our county who depend on farming as an occupation, and a good number who supplement their income by farming.

You have an opportunity of visiting several of these operations free of charge on Saturday during the Hancock Chamber of Commerce and Farm Bureau's county farm tour.

A bus will depart from the Kmart parking lot at 9 a.m. The tour is to include a stop at Whitfield Timber Company's wood yard in Kiln, Charlotte Farms, the Harris Ladner vegetable farm; lunch at the Farm Bureau office; Breau Farm, Ladner Farms, headquarters of Shiloh Ranch; and a circle around Leetown.

Some may be surprised at the amount of farm-related enterprises in Hancock County, and this would be a good opportunity to view them first hand.

I realize Wednesday was the deadline for making reservations, but there is a possibility there still may be a few seats available. If you are interested, give the chamber a call at 467-9048.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator
Trent Lott

Over 200 years in the making

Well, it took nearly 203 years, but a proposal initiated by James Madison to amend the United States Constitution has finally been adopted as the 27th amendment.

The amendment, called the James Madison amendment, is designed to bar Congress from giving itself midterm pay raises. It states, "No law varying the compensation for the services of the Senators and Representatives, shall take effect, until an election of Representatives shall have intervened."

The interesting thing about this amendment is the length of time it took to be ratified and the questions it raises about how Constitutional amendments are adopted.

It was passed by Congress and submitted to the states, along with the Bill of Rights, on Sept. 25, 1789. It needed a three-fourths approval majority from the states to be ratified as provided under Article V of the Constitution.

The first state to adopt the amendment was Maryland on Dec. 19, 1789, and by 1791 only six states had ratified the measure. The amendment finally won a three-fourths majority when Michigan became the 38th state to ratify the pay restriction, just a few hours before the 39th state, New Jersey, did the same, on May 7, 1992.

Michigan became one of 31 states to ratify the amendment during just over a nine-year period from April 27, 1983, to May 7, 1992.

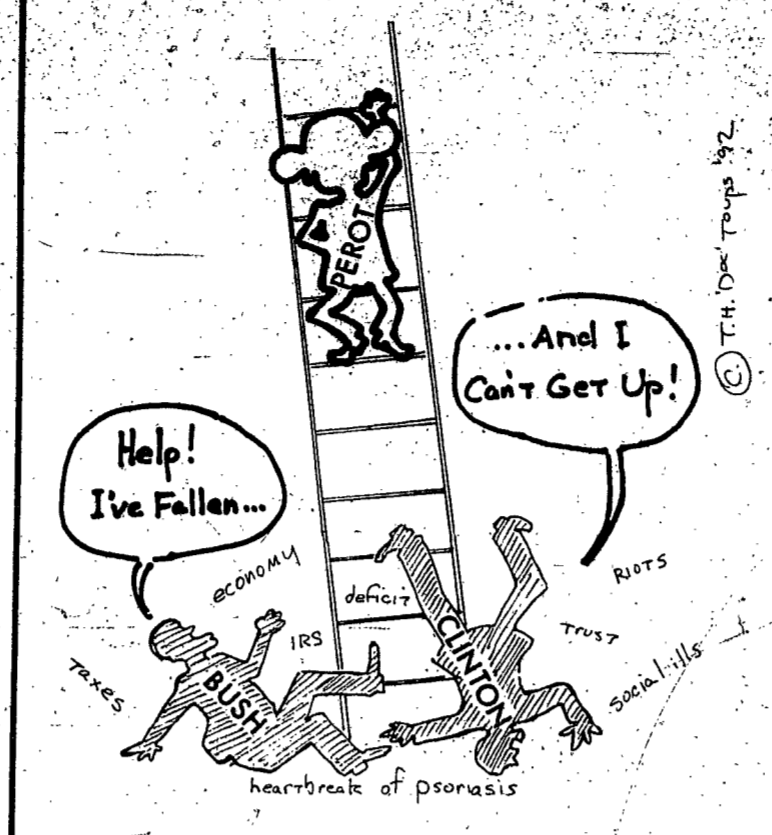

But, time has not been ruled as a factor to negate the earlier ratifications as required form the necessary state legislatures. It is becoming a part of the Constitution, and I think that is good. It will help the people's attitude toward the Congress in the way that compensation is handled.

So, we now have the 27th amendment to the U.S. Constitution—let's go ahead with it.

Senator Lott welcomes any questions and/or comments about this column. Please write to: U.S. Senator Trent Lott, 487 Russell Building, Washington, D.C. 20510 (U.S. Press Office).

Taylor defends strategic petroleum reserve

"How can we not afford to invest in protecting America's future security? If we continue on this steady course of neglecting our Strategic Petroleum Reserve, it is inevitable that this program which was designed to help oil consumers and industry in the event of oil disruptions will dry up and wither away," said U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor, who spoke on the House floor today in defense of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

Congressman Taylor said he was disappointed the House voted to strike the Energy Bill's amendment which would fill the Strategic Petroleum Reserve at a rate of 150,000 barrels per day and establish a new set-aside program under which oil companies would be required to contribute crude oil to fill the reserve.

The Strategic Petroleum Reserve is a system of gigantic reservoirs of oil stored in underground caverns, to be used in the event of an emergency. If the amendment had passed, the addition of 150,000 barrels per day, at no cost to the taxpayer, would have filled the reserve to the 1 billion barrel cap approved by Congress in 1980. The nation's reserve currently holds 570 million barrels, much less than is needed.

Taylor also said he has been assured the amendment's failure would have no effect on the Department of Energy's (DOE) process of selecting at least two new major crude oil storage sites in the Gulf Coast Region. The facilities will be selected and they will be built.

"If Richton's Salt dome is selected, which we are hopeful it will be, construction would remain on schedule, millions of dollars would be pumped into Mississippi's economy and pipeline industries and their associated subcontractors would provide much needed employment," Taylor said. "What is not known is when oil would actually flow into the reserve once it is completed."

However, while the amendment's failure would have little effect on Mississippi's proposed reserve site, Taylor said the vote would have a major impact on the national's economic security. "The ramification of today's vote will eventually be felt throughout the nation," Taylor said. "If we have learned anything in the past two decades, not to mention the past two years, it is that America is vulnerable to future oil shocks."

Nearly 20 years ago the first major oil crisis threw the economy in a tailspin. Since then, Americans have witnessed additional oil crises, each sending our nation's economy into serious recession.

"We are still paying for the disruption and aftershocks of the most recent oil scare," said Taylor. "It is estimated that the Iraqi oil shock cost billions of dollars in lost Gross National Product. And have we already forgotten how much Americans were paying for a gallon of gas less than two years ago?"

Freedom of expression threatened in Waveland

Dear Editor,

I am writing this on Memorial Day. I am a veteran of World War II and fought in the Marine Corps to preserve the freedoms that we are supposed to enjoy throughout America today.

What is happening at the Waveland city meetings is troubling me greatly.

Waveland citizens are getting taxation without representation. Three aldermen vote almost 100 percent of the time to give the mayor anything she wants, and they question her not. They vote to spend the Waveland citizens' money with little hesitation and without full knowledge of the issues. I say this because they receive no particulars to study before the vote.

One alderman, Stan Weidman, has attempted to give informed votes by asking what appears to be very pertinent questions. This aggravates the mayor and other aldermen so badly that they just about ignore him. Any motions he may make die for lack of a second; but when another alderman makes an identical motion, it is seconded and voted in.

In an attempt to silence Weidman, the mayor and her three "rubber stamps" have passed an ordinance by which the mayor can have anyone ejected from a meeting for their conduct. Weidman's questions made her so unhappy at the last meeting that she gave him one warning, and then a final warning that he would be ejected if he did not shut up. What's happening here?

Another ordinance was passed that gives the mayor the sole right to say who will be on the agenda and who will be recognized to speak at these public meetings. This is control that threatens freedom of speech.

Waveland citizens better wake up and find out what condition their city is in, and in particular, how much money is left in the city's coffers.

Abolish 55 mph highway speed traps

To the Editor:

I read the "troopers/speeding motorists" article in your paper Thursday, May 21. The article favored the use of road blocks, 55 mph speed traps and traffic quotas. The article boasted of some 2,300 tickets, including 170 DUI's being passed out last year just during the 1991 Memorial Day weekend. The article went so far as to say, "Many motorists forget that all highways in Mississippi do not have a 65 mph speed limit."

Most people I talk to disagree with this view, and feel that 55 mph speed limits on rural four-lane highways are absurd and 55 mph speed traps should be abolished. What the article forgot to mention is that traffic normally moves at 65 mph on four-lane highways, even though there is a 55 mph limit posted. I'm sure by now many of you have become Memorial Day traffic quota victims.

Fork out your after-tax dollars or be threatened with a jail sentence. These tickets can be handed to you without the officer having to show you a locked-in display. Even on 65 mph roads, traffic moves 70-75 mph in the left lane. This is safe speed for competent drivers, especially during the daytime.

To review history on the 55 mph law, the 55 mph scam was set into law by a 1973 executive order solely for energy conservation purposes. Since that time, it has been kept on the books by a number of special interests. Some of these interests include revenue enhancement for local and state governments, insurance and safety fanatics, and traffic cop job security.

The partial repeal of the 55 mph speed limit in April 87 did not come by accident. It came in part because we elected a president who personally opposed ridiculous government regulations such as the unpopular 55 mph speed limit, but primarily because of intense lobbying by a political group called the National Motorist Association (NMA). The only thing presently keeping the 55 mph limit on the books is federal grant money to states from the Department of Transportation for 55 mph enforcement. Otherwise state governments would change the limits back to the pre-1973 standards supported by the people.

Those of us who have never had a wreck feel the key to safe driving is watching the road and moving with traffic whatever the speed happens to be. Most people I talk to don't like the idea that they can be pulled over and threatened with a jail sentence simply for moving with traffic. We weel the excessive use of speed traps and road blocks to enforce unfair traffic laws only serves to cultivate greater disrespect for law enforcement workers, and produces a whole host of undesirable consequences.

Some of these undesirable consequences include fines people can't afford to pay, jail sentences for those who have never committed a crime, suspended licenses for people who have never had a wreck, suspended licenses for people who depend on driving to get to a job where they can feed their families, etc.

The National Motorist Association is presently lobbying to repeal the 55 mph speed limit, and other unfair traffic laws which adversely affect otherwise law abiding citizens.

If you would like to do your part in the struggle against tyranny you might consider giving the NMA a call. The toll free number is 1-800-882-2785.

The greatest cause of any problem is good people doing nothing.

Sincerely yours,
Ken Overstreet

STREET TALK

What advice would you give the government on ways to stimulate the economy?

"Quit sending all our money overseas. Try a little of that foreign aid here in the United States."

Richard Sanders
Bay St. Louis

"Get rid of the crooked politicians and get some honest ones, and it would help everyone."

James Harvey Lakeshore

"Gosh, that's easy. Just get people jobs, which they are not going to do."

Frances White Shoreline Park

"Start back with the work camps like before World War II. Instead of giving food stamps, put people to work. We need roads and parks. The people don't need handouts, they need a hand up."

Florence Asher Bay St. Louis

"I think they ought to do something to help promote family planning. The population growth needs to be curbed for future survival. Immediately, CCC programs to create jobs. The people need jobs. Also the government needs to cut out the pork barreling. There should be enough money saved from recent defense cuts to help with the creation of job programs."

Helen Henri Diamondhead

"Tell them to throw all the bums out and get some young blood in there, people who think they can make a difference, who really want to work for the country and not for themselves."

J. Sirkis Diamondhead

"Cut the taxes and the bureaucratic red tape of government. Review the entire workmen's compensation law."

Roy Stoddard Pass Christian

"Provide jobs. Open up something, whatever needs to be done so jobs are created."

Jean Lewis Diamondhead

"The federal government isn't going to have much to do with stimulating the economy. The people are going to have put their money back into the economy rather than save it, in order to see some improvements."

Marcus Ladner Pearllington

Job

when you have other things to do. You want to be able to give the employer your undivided attention and plenty of time to interview you.

—Don't be late for the interview, and don't be more than 15 minutes early. Ladner said many employers don't want prospective employees encountering each other during the interview process, and will try to schedule some time between interviews to ensure that one person has left the office before the next one arrives.

—Dress neatly and appropriately for the job. Don't show up in jeans to interview for an office job; don't show up at a fast food restaurant in a business suit. However, Ladner said, "It's better to be overdressed than underdressed if you aren't sure what the job calls for."

—When you go to the interview, smile and show a positive attitude. Don't criticize former employers or co-workers; state your qualifications for the position in a confident manner, but don't brag or exaggerate.

—Be aware of your posture and body language, and don't chew tobacco, smoke or drink alcohol before the interview. Don't smoke or chew gum during the interview, and don't take a soft drink with you.

—When asking your questions—and you should ask at least a few, to show your interest in the job—inquire about the company and job first. Make questions about wages, benefits and hours your last ones.

"Your first words shouldn't be, 'What does this job pay?' or "When do I get my first raise?" Ladner said. "You want to show the employer you are interested in the job. Those questions, if they are asked at the beginning of the interview, tell an employer all you care about is the money."

—For the same reasons, don't tell an employer how financially desperate you are for the job, even if you are.

—Don't stop at just one application. The more companies you apply to for a job, the more likely you are to get one.

—Follow up. Write or call the employer after an interview, thanking him or her for taking time to interview you, and call again later if you don't hear anything about whether or not you have the job.

When you fill out an application or send in a resume, it's a good idea to call a week or so later if you get no acknowledgment that the employer received the application or resume. Such a call reminds the employer of your interest.

—If you can't find a paying job, consider a volunteer job. Employers look at volunteer work as experience, and such a job may open a future door to a paying position.

known to contaminate."

Rupp commented the Du Pont wells have experienced brine leakage into the injection tubing a half dozen times over the years. Each time the wells were repaired and operations continued.

As a preventative, he said, all solids are removed from the acidic disposal, then a solution is inducted in stream to ensure flow.

The fourth well, Rupp added, will not be used for the generation of additional waste or disposal. It will only assist in ongoing operations.

Plant manager Mack McCluskey interjected, "We operate and maintain our wells to the high standards required by state regulations. This includes annual testing, which takes each well out of service for several days."

"If additional maintenance is required, the well may be out of service for several weeks or months. Since we need two operating wells to maintain plant capacity, an unscheduled shutdown on one well at the same time as routine maintenance on a second well would limit plant capacity.

"Therefore, we are planning to install a fourth well to ensure our ability to operate the plant at full capacity."

Du Pont sent its application for a permit to install the fourth well to DEQ last week. Response to the application is expected within 3-5 months.

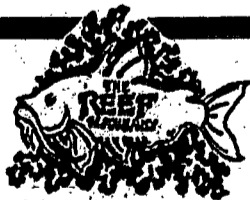

Covington reported Du Pont to be one of only three companies presently using deep well injection disposal in Mississippi. Morton International in Moss Point operates two wells at depths of 3,950 feet and 2,500 feet; and Engelhard Corporation in Jackson has one well at 5,600 feet.

Titanium dioxide is an inert, non-toxic white pigment which provides brightness and opacity in paper, paints and plastics as well as in textile fibers, ink and cosmetics. Du Pont is the world's largest producer of titanium dioxide.

Babe Ruth League opens first season

Opening ceremonies for the newly-formed Bay Area Babe Ruth League were held at 5:15 p.m. Thursday, May 21 at Bay High baseball field. All five teams, their coaches and several sponsors were in attendance. City councilman John Wilkerson and American Legion color guard led the opening ceremonies. The game ball was thrown by Perry O'Berg, Babe Ruth district commissioner, to Duncan Lamb, league president.

The new league consists of five teams and includes 63 players. Games will be played on Monday and Thursday nights at 6 and 8 at Bay High's baseball field.

"The enthusiasm of the boys and their parents is really incredible," reported Jane Lamb, local league secretary. "As the games can be played locally, and it gives the young men an organized, supervised and healthy activity to do in the summer, the entire board is pleased with the positive response by the community. It makes all the work worthwhile when everything gels and the players are on the field playing their hearts out."

The concession stand is in full swing, and the public is invited to come out, eat a hot dog and enjoy the games.

All 13-15-year-old residents of any area of Hancock County are eligible to play. Persons needing additional information may contact Duncan Lamb at 467-4069 or Gene Green at 467-3421.

Shrimp season to open June 9

Mississippi shrimp season will open at 6 a.m. Tuesday, June 9, and biologists are projecting a poor harvest this year.

Joe Gill Jr., deputy director of the Bureau of Marine Resources, said he ordered the June 9 opening, based on shrimp samples taken Monday.

Gill said the samples were of such a size to enable biologists to project that the average size of shrimp will be 68 to the pound, the legal harvestable size, by June 9.

Biologists had difficulty in making sample trawls this year. High salinity levels in the Mississippi Sound have kept shrimp far up in the estuaries, preventing biologists from gathering sufficient numbers of shrimp to make a projection on the opening of shrimp season.

Tom Van Devender, BMR chief of saltwater fisheries, said biologists had to change their sampling routine several weeks ago, however, the latest data was taken from the normal sampling station in the Sound. The opening date is scheduled to correspond with shrimp season opening in Alabama.

Van Devender said that sampling will continue up to the opening date and that the season could be delayed if rainfall washes large amounts of small shrimp into the Sound.

Biologists with BMR and the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory have been monitoring the arrival of small brown shrimp since early March and have noted fewer shrimp in samples this year than in previous years.

"Although environmental conditions in the sound have been favorable for shrimp survival this year," Van Devender said, "There seems to have been a lot less shrimp entering the Sound this spring. This means that there are fewer shrimp growing in the marshes."

Recruitment of shrimp into northern Gulf of Mexico estuaries depends on ocean currents and winds during March and April. Late spring cold fronts and accompanying north winds may have accounted for the fewer numbers of shrimp moving into the Sound.

Shrimping licenses are sold from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at the BMR main office near Edgewater Mall in Biloxi.

Beginning Wednesday, June 3, licenses will be sold in the old Jackson County Health Department on Old Stage road in Pascagoula. The Jackson County office will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, through the season opening date.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

Speckled trout abound in local fishing areas

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Cynoscion nebulosus are moving into the bayous and shoreline from the Pearl River to as far east as I have received reports. In fact if you did not catch some Cynoscion nebulosus this past week, you are either a poor fisherman, I mean terrible, awful, bad, or you did not even go fishin'.

For those folks who noticed, the turtle has moved completely past the 50-cent words to the $1.50 words. Cynoscion nebulosus is the formal scientific name for speckled trout, or spotted sea trout, or just plain specks. This past week was a banner week for the specks as the reports from LaFrance's, Bordages, and all points west, said anybody who tried caught specks.

LaFrance reports the canals and bayous produced specks, reds and a few flounders using live shrimp under a popping cork. Those who went to Grassie Island and Half Moon island experienced fair action on the "big" fish. There were a few reports that some Spanish speaking fish were spotted jumping around Grassie Island.

Jondon Shilg, a fanatic fisherman from Baton Rouge, La., reports he caught some graduate school trout on the north side of Petite Pass in the drop off by the island. The trout were in the deep water on the down current side as the water washed across the island. They were hungry for the silver cacaho with the chartreuse head.

According to Shilg, "If the trout don't want to bite on plastic baits, they can stay in the water." I guess they call this an artificial bait purist.

Bordage Fish camp reports the word this week, according to Ringo: "You got plenty to write about this week, turtle. Everybody who went out to the Bayou Boland-Three Oaks area caught trout." I guess that makes it short and sweet; grab some live shrimp at Bordages, go to the mouth of Bayou Caddy and turn right. The first little bayou is Bayou Bolan. The second bayou is Three Oaks.

Oh, by the way, it helps if you use a boat to get to these areas, as there are no really good roads through the marsh. Don't use an ultra light plane either, as the Coast Guard already sent one rescue mission to get a downed ultra light out of the marsh this past week.

Along the areas where there are roads, the seawall, the early morning wade fishermen might have noticed you need to take a number to get into the surf by Monroe's and the other long piers.

It is nothing to have eight or more fishermen side by side in waist-deep water out by the piers. The nice thing is almost everyone is catching some keeper trout. (Even Ellis Cuevas!) Most fishermen by the piers were using chartreuse plastic tails on a variety of jig heads either with or without a cork. But the really nice trout were caught on small live croakers (less than three inches long) under a popping cork about 18 inches.

The small live croakers were caught with a cast net in the areas where a culvert or bayou empties into the sound.

Cedar Point area by the "well" produced some trout. The bottom in this area is just perfect for fish. It is almost solid shell bottom until you get about 30 feet off of the sand bar. Ideal fishing area and it produced fish on live shrimp this past week.

This week's wonderful wise words: For eating croakers, try fishin' Mr. Herbie's corner. No more $1.50 words, turtle.

Measure fish properly to comply with law

When you are out catching fish, make sure your "keepers" are within the lengths of the law.

The total length is measured with the fish's mouth closed and the tail squeezed together. This gives the angler the maximum overall measurement of his catch. A flat board is the only standard device used to measure fish that are managed in public waters by length limit regulations.

The minimum length limit imposed on some public waters ensures that all fish less than the regulated size length in inches are returned to the water.

The slot length limit requires that all fish on or between the designated range of lengths in inches are returned to the water if caught. Fish that fall under these two rules may not be possessed on designated waters.

Be sure to check the minimum length and slot limits register on the body of public water where you fish.

Non-resident fees increased

Starting July 1, non-residents hunting and fishing in the state will pay more for some licenses.

The Commission on Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks recently voted to increase the non-resident all-game hunting license from $150 to $175, small game hunting license from $50 to $75, and fishing license from $20 to $25.

"Non-residents buying an all-game hunting license still need the $30 archery/primitive weapon permit if they want to archery hunt or hunt with a primitive weapon. This fee was not increased," said Bill Quisenberry, director of administration.

Officials say the increases should generate about $555,000 for the agency during the fiscal year beginning in July.
